At least 92 percent of all smartphone owners had done it in the last six months before the study was conducted. Even more interesting is they found that 80 percent of all consumer want to see a restaurant's menu before they choose to eat there, and 62 percent say they won't eat a restaurant if they can't view their menu on their devices. For this reason, more and more restaurant owners are opting to place their menus online. Here's how to find them: Find the Restaurant WebsiteThe best place to look for a restaurant's menu is directly on the business's personal website. If the restaurant is independent and local to you, you can usually find it by performing a quick Google search of the restaurant's name plus the name of your city or community. Keep in mind that some smaller restaurant's won't have a website, but that doesn't mean you still can't find their menus online. If you're searching for a popular national or regional chain restaurants site, simply perform a Google search of the restaurant name, and it should be one of the top options in your results. Find the Menu Page on the WebsiteOnce you're on a restaurant's website, finding the menu should be fairly easy. It may be shown right there on the home page, or you may have to click on a link along the top or side of the page that says "menu" to access it. Some restaurants may have their menus posted as a PDF file which might require you to download it to access it. Just keep in mind that many eateries have multiple menus for certain times of the day, kids' menus, cocktail menus, specials and seasonal offerings, so you may discover multiple menus on a site. Also, keep in mind that if you visit the site of a chain restaurant, you may have to enter your zip code or city and state to see the right menu for your location. Try Social MediaIf the restaurant is on social media, specifically Facebook, you may find the menu listed there. Many smaller and locally-owned places opt to only operate a social media page instead of a website, especially if they already have a big following. To find the menu on Facebook, search for your desired restaurant, and then look under its "About" page. Not only will you find a link to a menu, either via a PDF file or a website, but you'll also find other important business information, like phone numbers, what kind of parking there is, business hours and a map of the location. Just keep in mind that not every restaurant adds all of this information to their Facebook pages. Look to Third Party SitesLuckily, there are many third-party sites online that allow restaurants and their customers to post menus online. They can be especially helpful for smaller and independent restaurants that don't yet have an online presence. These are some of your options: All Menus: This site has listings for hundreds of thousands of restaurants across the US. Choose your city and a type of cuisine, or look for restaurants in nearby locations. You can also order takeout with direct links to GrubHub. Menu Pages: Menu Pages has tens of thousands of restaurants listed from over 1,000 US cities. The site is powered by GrubHub to make ordering takeout easier than ever. Eat24: This site is also owned by GrubHub, so it makes viewing a restaurant's menu and ordering takeout a practically seamless move. Search Google Business and ImagesIf you still can't find what you're looking for, Google may be a good source. When you search for the restaurant you want, you'll likely see a Google Business profile on the right side of your screen. It lists the name and contact information, along with hours, reviews from real customers, frequently asked questions, information about when the restaurant is busiest and links to any relevant websites and menus. Social Profile : Skip to navigationSkip to content Beacon Hill is one of Boston's historic and picturesque neighborhoods - and while it may be quaint, there are plenty of restaurants to enjoy there. Read on for our top picks, ranging from breakfast at Tatte Bakery & Café to premium cuts of steak at Mooo. 01 of 07 75 Chestnut serves regional American comfort food - think lobster mac and cheese, beer-battered fish and chips, burgers and clam chowder. The restaurant is owned by Thomas A. Korshaw, who also owns the iconic Cheers in Faneuil Hall and Beacon Hill. This cozy, charming restaurant is located in a brownstone and is a great option to get a taste of New England. 02 of 07 Address 42 Charles St, Boston, MA 02114, USA Phone +1 617-742-3447 Figs Pizza is so much more than your everyday pizza, it's much more. With locations in both Beacon Hill and Charlestown, their large, irregularly-shaped pizza has become quite popular, especially among neighborhood locals (their motto is "never trust a round pizza"). It has a thin, crisp crust made with a special cooking technique, though it's also the high-quality ingredients used that make the pizza as delicious as it is. Pizza options include traditional varieties, along with popular picks such as fig and prosciutto, crispy eggplant and the Red Sox - made with caramelized onions, red peppers, sweet sausage, mozzarella, tomato sauce and a mustard aioli. 03 of 07 For Italian cuisine, try Grotto. This restaurant isn't on the main roads of Beacon Hill, but rather on the back side of the neighborhood, so some consider it a hidden gem. The menu is filled with contemporary Italian dishes, including fra diavolo, chicken parmesan and veal parmesan. To try out more of the men. Grotto also offers prix fixe dinner options for both $36 and $42 per person, depending on what you're in the mood to taste. 04 of 07 If you're looking for a modern steakhouse in Beacon Hill, Mooo is the place for you. Next to the XV Beacon Hotel, Mooo has an extensive menu of a la carte steak dishes, seafood and other specials. The restaurant also offers brunch on Sundays, and if you want food that is a bit more casual, there is a bar menu with oysters, burgers, pizza and more. Mooo also has a nice event space, The Wine Cellar, which holds up to 50 seated guests. Mooo is owned by Columbus Hospitality Group, which also owns Mistral, Teatro, Ostra, Sorellina and L'Andana. No. 9 Park, which can be found in a Beacon Hill townhouse, is no exception. Here you'll enjoy a fine dining experience with mix of Italian and French cuisine - all simple and flavor-forward. An extensive wine list promises the perfect pairing with whatever menu item you select. 06 of 07 Courtesy of Tatte Bakery & Café In 2015, Tatte Bakery & Café opened its fifth location on Charles Street in Beacon Hill, which has since become a neighborhood staple. Offering breakfast, lunch and dinner Monday through Friday and brunch Friday through Sunday, this is where you'll want to go for fresh pastries, tarts, cookies (try the pistachio) and cakes. For more savory treats, choose from tartines like avocado with a poached egg on sourdough, full plates like the vegetable and wild rice bowl, an egg-in-hole on a bagel, quiches, sandwiches, salads and so much more. Of course, there's also a full menu of coffees, espressos and teas. When the weather is nice, you can opt to sit outside on their patio while you enjoy your food and coffee and get some work in. 07 of 07 Courtesy of The Tip Tap Room The Tip Tap Room is where to go for exactly what the name says - tips and taps. That is, tips ranging from steak and turkey, to swordfish, lamb and tofu, and a wide selection of beers on tap from all over the world. The restaurant vibe is that of an upscale pub, with the menu much more elevated than traditional pub food. Aside from tips, choose from a variety of small plates like grilled corn, brussels sprouts and duck drumettes, several types of burgers and other entrees including braised wild boar, gnocchi and steak frites.
